

PhD Program in Public Economics in Munich, Germany

Dear colleague,

The Department of Public Economics at the Max Planck Institute for Tax Law and Public Finance in Munich, Germany, offers excellent opportunities for and is funding several talented PhD students in Public Economics for three to four years, starting at the beginning of the academic year on October 1, 2019.

Students, who are awarded funding by our Institute, will receive

- a monthly salary to cover living expenses,
- funding for international event attendance and research visits,
- extensive training in an interdisciplinary research environment in public economics and tax law,
- guidance by experienced scientists,
- and will be admitted to a top graduate PhD program with courses offered by the Munich Graduate School of Economics (MGSE: <http://www.mgse.econ.uni-muenchen.de/index.html>).

They will be affiliated with the Max Planck Institute for Tax Law and Public Finance and be part of the research team of the Institute, which offers an international environment and excellent facilities for pursuing basic research.

I would be grateful, if you could bring this unique program to the attention of outstanding and highly motivated students and display the enclosed poster visibly at your department. Please note that the online application opens in December 2018 and closes in March 2019.

Thank you very much in advance for your kind help and cooperation.

Yours sincerely

Kai A. Konrad
